

HEIRLOOM BLEND HARDWOOD FLOORING

Like the 19th century barns from which these timbers were salvaged, our heirloom blend contains a mix of beech, hickory, maple, red oak, white oak, and other hardwoods. Early farmers used the logs felled on site, regardless of species. We, too, have embraced that resourcefulness with this blend for a durable and unique flooring choice. Our flooring is made from solid wood (rather than engineered veneer) and is meant to endure for generations, much like heirloom furniture, growing richer with time.

Our flooring has been kiln dried. During the milling process, we add back relief for stability and square-edge-tongue-and-groove joinery for straightforward installation. See images for our surface texture options.
