MANTELS

A unique fireplace mantel makes a statement, and our selection is incomparable. From our limited edition circa 1600's French oak hand-hewn beams to our re-sawn Douglas fir, we have a mantel to fit your design aesthetic and your budget. Our talented team can detail and finish it for you, or you can purchase an unfinished mantel. With our extensive selection, we're sure to have just the focal point you've been looking for.

TIMBERS FROM WHICH MANTELS ARE COMMONLY CUT:

HAND-HEWN TIMBERS: To hew a log is to transform the naturally round log into a timber, with either two or four roughly flat surfaces to yield two-sided or four-sided hand-hewn, respectively. Before sawmills and lumberyards were common, craftsmen used hand tools such, as broad axes and adzes, along with hard work and skill to turn logs into timbers. This arduous work left signature adze marks on the beams, which not only add unique character and authenticity to the product, but also a nod to the lost art of hewing by hand. Many also retain mortise pockets and tenons from their original joinery. Because this material was crafted by hand from locally available logs, the dimensions and species vary.

ORIGINAL PATINA TIMBERS: These antique timbers came from densely grained, old growth trees and provided the structural framework for agricultural buildings, factories, warehouses, hangers, shipyards, and other commercial buildings. Produced after the advent of the industrial mill, they range in size from 4" x 4" to 16" x 32" and beyond.

RESAWN (MILLED) TIMBERS: The fresh-milled version of our Original Patina Timbers, these timbers can be cut to specific and unique dimensions. The resawn surface easily accepts stain and other finishes, making it especially well suited to projects requiring a consistent color or a contemporary aesthetic.
